THE MUSEUM

The Museum took shape when singer Ben Richter and guitarist Geoffrey Ashcraft moved from Texas to Georgia and plugged into a church where drummer/programmer Josh Kirk was the janitor. Soon they were leading local worship services together and then traveling on musical mission trips overseas. "We decided the band would be called The Museum", Josh says, "because we hope our music and those we share it with can be the evidence that Christ has done a revolution in our hearts." Joined by bassist Chris Brink in 2009, The Museum is continuing its commitment to global outreach while also developing an important bond with church across the United States.
